Natural Highlights

Lower Inn European Nature Reserve

In the borderland of Bavaria and Austria you can visit the Lower Inn European Nature Reserve, which is 5.500 hectares in size. At this nature and bird reserve there are untouched alluvial forests, rare plant and animal species and numerous migatory and water birds.

More than 200 bird species can find both nutrient sources and breeding places there. Along cycle and hiking paths nature lovers can discover the reserve. Two observation decks invite visitors to get to know the unique diversity of birds in the region during all seasons of the year. Even fish eagles and sea eagles can be observed.

The information centre of the Lower Inn European Nature Reserve presents its new exhibition since the 31st of May 2020. Visitors can learn fascinating and exciting information about the habitats at the Lower River Inn, like for instance how the islands there have developed, which animals are living in the alluvial forests or which bird species are currently present in the area.
